CHINESE PRESS LAUDS NATIONS FOR MEDIATION

Shanghai, July 22.—While minor provocative incidents continued to be reported, the press of China today lauded the efforts of the powers at mediation, but warned the people "to watch the possible interest of certain nations," although it was the general opinion that the crisis principally concerned the Chinese and Soviet governments. The possibility of a world conflagration was also touched upon, if the powers did not move to avert a conflict along the Chinese-Siberian border.

Reports received here from Harbin asserted Russian aviators were dropping bombs on Chinese territory, in the vicinity of Pogranichnaya, in an effort to terrify Chinese troops.

That Chinese soldiers are taking exception to the flights of Russian airmen in the vicinity of Manchuria, was indicated today when advice stated that riflemen had repeatedly fired upon Russian airplanes.

Report Ship Seizures
At the juncture of the Amur and Sungari rivers, Soviet gunboats are reported to have seized three merchantmen and to have carried off the crews and passengers to Russia.

Peking, July 22.—All Manchuria from the Amur river to the Mongolian line is gripped today with the fears and excitement of threatened war. The most tension exists along the Siberian frontier, in Harbin and through the zone traversed by the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Sensational reports have come out of Harbin in the past 36 hours, but all are unconfirmed. Upon three different occasions there have been waves of rumors that Soviet forces, supported by military planes and cavalry screens, have swept over the border into Manchuria, occupying several communities and firing upon (Continued on Page 5)

Health Outing For Two Weeks

Eighteen Salem crippled children will be taken to the Rotary club health camp, this afternoon, by the club's crippled children's committee, for their annual health outing, which will last for a period of two weeks.

Children were selected for the camp by the club committee, and are continually under this committee's supervision. Each year they are given an outing at the scout reservation, during which period they are given careful health training, and proper supervision to better their crippled bodies.

Hann, arrested Friday night, in a upon his home by Patrolmen William Reardon and Wilbur Hilderson, was committed to city jail pending payment of the fine.

A preliminary hearing before Reardon, Hann had denied the liquor confiscated at his home were for sale. He changed his plea after the mayor threatened to have them analyzed by City Chemist R. P. Vickers.

JAIL BREAKER CAPTURED SOON AFTER ESCAPE

Sheriff Barlow Finds Man
In Basement of Sister's
Home In Canton

Lisbon, July 22.—Within 12 hours after he had effected his escape from the Columbiana county jail in Lisbon, A. A. Baker, of Wellsville, was back in custody of county officials, following his capture by Sheriff William J. Barlow, in Canton, shortly after noon, Saturday.

Baker was in county jail awaiting action from the grand jury on a charge of non-support, and late Friday night, or early Saturday morning, sawed two bars of the bull pen of the prison, and escaped through the south window.

County officials believe the break was effected through assistance from the outside, and are conducting extensive investigations. His escape was noticed early Saturday morning, and a dragnet spread throughout Stark and Mahoning counties, while Barlow immediately went to Canton, to the home of Baker's sister.

Patrolman H. O. West, of the Canton police department accompanied Barlow to the home, Barlow a cot in the basement.

He offered no resistance, and was returned to the Lisbon prison within 15 hours after his escape.

WHEAT DOUBLES YIELD IN 1928

Columbiana Crop Said
Excellent; Runs 20-30
Bushels to Acre

Wheat yield in Columbiana county for the current season is nearly double that of 1928, with little if any increase in acreage, according to reports mill interests have received from growers. New wheat is now bringing $1.20 per bushel at Lisbon mills, and about 600 bushels of the new crop have been delivered.

The yield this year is said to be averaging from 20 to 30 bushels per acre, which is greater than the yield of a year ago. The early growing season was beneficial to the crop throughout the county.

Some growers who sold immediately after their yield was threshed received $1.10 per bushel, but the market today at Lisbon was $1.20 firm.

Many growers last fall sowed certified seed, and this is said to have resulted in a better crop with a normal acreage planted. Practically all wheat grown in the county is sold in local mills, little if any being shipped to the elevator interests.

SEVEN KILLED IN OHIO GRADE CROSSING CRASH

Two Families Die When Train Strikes Auto At Eaton

Eaton, O., July 22.—Seven persons were instantly killed when the Chicago daylight express, of the Pennsylvania railroad demolished an automobile at a crossing two miles west of here on the Dayton-Indianapolis road yesterday.

It is the largest number of persons to be killed in a single grade crossing crash in Preble county and one of the greatest tolls to be exacted by an accident involving a train and a privately owned auto in Ohio.

The dead are Frank Clark, 28, his wife, Ray Holeman, 30, and his wife and their three children, Cecil, 4, Odell, 2, and Juanita, 2 months old.

All are said to have been residents of Richmond Ind., which is located just over the Ohio state line.

Their automobile was carried about 400 feet down the track, by the train, which was enroute to Chicago from Cincinnati.

Car Is Demolished
Parts of the car were found on telephone wires several hundred feet from the highway.

The party was enroute to their homes after having enjoyed a day of picnicking in Ohio.

The crew of the train picked up three of the dead persons and brought them to a physician's office here. The other four victims were brought here in an ambulance.

Dr. R. L. Emrick, who examined the dead, declared the seven had been killed instantly.

At the point where the tragedy occurred, the railroad crosses the highway at an angle.

An investigation into the accident is to be made today by Sheriff Sam Welsh, Acting Coroner S. S. Lander and Marshall Willard Armstrong.

These officials said that they expected to receive a report of the accident from officials of the Pennsylvania railroad.

SAVED AFTER LEAP IN RIVER

Youngstown Girl Attempts To End
Life, But Is Saved By
Captain of Boat

Pittsburgh, July 22.—A slim girl poised for a moment as she stood on the rail of the Smithfield bridge today, then hurled herself into the Monongahela river. Horrified bystanders immediately raised a cry for aid.

Capt. George Nottingham, of the steamer Helen C. rowed out in a skiff and pulled the girl to safety just as she was sinking. After treatment at Allegheny General hospital, the girl was questioned by police at Central station, and gave her name as Josephine Hatley, 20, of Bridge st., Youngstown, O. She had stepped from a train in the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie station only a few moments before she hurled herself from the bridge, she said.

Captain Ross Hoyt Forced From Air

Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, July 22.—Captain Ross G. Hoyt, United States Army pilot, was forced down at Fairmont, British Columbia, on his return flight from Nome, Alaska, to New York, according to word received here early today.

The plane was completely wrecked, the message stated, but the pilot was not injured. No details were given.

Warden Flashes Word For Aid Soon After Outbreak

Albany, N. Y., July 22.—A detachment of United States soldiers from Plattsburgh and 100 state troopers were rushed to Dannemora to quell a riot of 1,000 prisoners in Clinton prison according to word received here by the state commission of correction.

Two guards and two convicts have been shot in the outbreak. The convicts were attempting to escape by climbing over the prison wall when shot by guards.

The outbreak started while the prisoners were marching out of the mess hall after they had finished their breakfast.

In five minutes, according to word received by state prison officials at Albany, the prisoners were rioting in the prison yard, fighting among themselves and with the guards.

For a few minutes, there was every indication of a general prison delivery.

Warden Asks For Aid
Warden Harry Kaiser, realizing the situation was serious, telephoned to the Plattsburgh barracks for a detachment of soldiers. He also phoned the state prison department which in turn asked the state police headquarters to rush troops at once to the prison.

There are 1,300 convicts, many of the mercurial life sentences, in the prison. Warden Kaiser reported to state officials here, however, that only about 1,000 of the convicts were participating in the riot.

There are 130 guards at the prison. Only for the fact that the guards were heavily armed and that they did not hesitate to shoot when the convicts started climbing up the wall, it was said, that all of the prisoners might have escaped.

Clinton prison at Dannemora is the penal institution in which only the most hardened and unmanageable criminals are confined.

It is regarded with terror throughout the underworld everywhere.

Prisoners who continue to act "tough" after withdrawing the rigors of Sing Sing and other institutions are invariably sentenced to spend the remainder of their terms in Clinton.

Reason Unknown
Warden Kaiser told prison officials he had no idea what started the riot. Kaiser said the prisoners were peacefully marching out of the mess hall when suddenly two or three (Continued on Page 5)

SELF DEFENSE TO BE PLEA OF CO-ED'S SLAYER

Attorneys Refuse Word
As To Nature Of Circumstances

Columbus, July 22.—Attorneys for Dr. James H. Snook, confessed slayer of Miss Theora K. Hix, 25, Ohio State university co-ed, today formally withdrew their motion for a sanity hearing for the man.

Prior to the hearing, John F. Seidel, one of the admitted bull-pen hammer welders' attorneys, announced that Dr. Snook had told him of a new and "real" motive for the slaying of his paramour.

At the time of his confession, which was obtained by County Prosecutor John J. Chester, Jr., after nearly 23 hours of intermittent questioning, Dr. Snook declared that he had slayed Miss Hix because she had threatened to kill his wife and two-year-old daughter, if he left Columbus for so much as a week end.

Seidel declared the motive given by Dr. Snook now is a radically different one, but he would not disclose it, saying it would be brought out at the deposed university instructor's first degree murder trial which is scheduled to start before Judge Henry L. Scarlett in criminal court here Wednesday morning.

The proceedings before Judge Scarlett today, which were formal in nature, having been announced previously, lasted only a few minutes.

They were delayed a short time by the non-appearance of Dr. Snook who, attaches of the county jail reported, was still sleeping peacefully on his cot in the county jail at the time the hearing was to have begun.

It took the admitted killer only 15 minutes to dress, refresh himself and make his appearance before the judge who will preside in the man's legal court fight for his life.

Seidel refused to amplify his announcement that the man, who at one time kept a "love nest" for Miss Hix, a medical student in the college of which he was a professor, had told him the "real" motive for the slaying.

Manufacturer Back With His Family

Bridgeport, O., July 22.—Thomas R. Hughes, local cigar manufacturer, who was missing for about the last two weeks, today notified his family that he accompanied a friend to Jacksonville, Florida.

The plane took off at 7:17 a. m. a week ago last Saturday and has been favored by excellent weather conditions.

"The Missouri Robin" sister ship of the "St. Louis Robin" has also exhibited tenacious cloud-clinging tendencies and was to start its sixth day and 121st hour in the air at 10:31 this morning.

Both planes were refueled this morning.

HEAVY FINE IN LIQUOR CHARGES

Judge Lones Imposes
$2,000 and Costs On Prisoner

Lisbon, July 22.—Bill Brown, residing on a farm, near Elkton, was fined $2,000 and costs by Common Pleas Judge W. F. Lones, upon arraignment on a charge of unlawful possession of intoxicating liquors, today, following his arrest by county officials, Saturday.

Brown's home was raided by Sheriff W. J. Barlow, and Deputies Jim Elliot, Dave Ellis, and George Harroff, who report finding 40 gallons of liquor, buried adjacent to a lane, in front of the house.

The fine imposed by Judge Lones is one of the stiffest to be handed out since prohibition became effective. Brown's residence had been raided three weeks ago, by the same officials, and a small quantity of liquor confiscated. He was fined $200 and costs in the case.

He was committed to county jail by Sheriff Barlow today, pending payment of the $2,000 fine.

New Philadelphia, O., July 22.—A "hit-skip" motorist who caused two accidents on the Uhrichville rd., near here, Saturday night, which resulted in the death of one person and injuries to four others, was being sought by Eastern Ohio police today.

John A. Hare, 42, Dover, was struck and killed by the motorist. A car, belonging to a friend, had been stalled on the highway and Hare was returning to it with a can of gasoline. The driver of the car which hit him did not stop.

COMMISSION TO STUDY PROBLEM

State Aid In Enforcement Will Form Topic For Group;
Issue In Front

Washington, July 22.—President Hoover's law enforcement commission met today with the controversial question of prohibition uppermost in the members' minds as a result of the now famous Wickersham letter, in which the commission's chairman advocated modification of the Volstead law to the extent of making the state take over partial enforcement.

Since the letter was made public, declaring that if the states would take over part of job of enforcing the dry laws, "national and state laws might be modified so as to become reasonably enforceable," Chairman Wickersham has remained silent under a barrage of questioning. Today, with resumption of sessions, the chairman has indicated he may make more clear his suggestion made in the letter.

Both wets and dries were agreed that the Wickersham letter had placed the prohibition issue before the committee squarely as the pre-eminent question to be solved by that body, and were hopeful of some move one way or another.

Three persons were killed in Dayton in separate accidents, and a like number of fatalities were reported from Cleveland.

An airplane accident, near Bowling Green, Saturday afternoon snuffed out the lives of three persons, James Derchou, 49, his son, Earl, 35, and Charles Jones, a flying instructor, all of Youngstown were burned to death when a ship burst into flames after it had nose-dived into the ground. The party was enroute to Pontiac, Mich., on a week end fishing trip.

NEW ROAD TO ENTER SALEM

Georgetown-Valley-Salem
Route Announced By Surveyor

A new road to be known as the North Georgetown, Valley, Salem highway is to be built, it has been announced by County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk, and the plans for the new route have just been finished.

The grading and drainage structures of the road will be let soon by the County Commissioners, and a public hearing on the project will be held at Lisbon at 1 o'clock August 5.

All claims for damages sustained on account of or incident to the improvement and claim for compensation for land and property to be taken must be filed with the Commissioners before the time set for the hearing.

Property will be required from 15 people along the proposed right of way in Butler and Perry townships.

The new road will begin at the end of the present new concrete road at North Georgetown in Butler township and extend northeast to intersect with Roosevelt avenue, Salem. A distance of slightly less than five miles is to be improved.

While the grading and drainage structures may be completed this year, it is not likely that a concrete top will be given the road until next year. The present route from North Georgetown to Salem is north to Damascus, then east over the Cox Highway.

STEEL FOUNDATION SOLID

Steel experts the country over are not convinced of the wisdom of an artificial check on production. They are looking to mergers, consolidations and expansions to make material reductions in costs. Rumors and counter-rumors are flashing back and forth in the steel industry these days, and they deal almost altogether with mergers.

Wall Street reporters indicate that an announcement of the joining of two, or perhaps three, steel companies is near at hand, and that this new organization, in turn, will line up other corporations in the midwest. But on the other hand there are those in the steel industry itself who declare the working out of such consolidation is so delicate an affair that months may be required for the task.

Whatever the makeup of such merger may be, there is no secret as to the intent and purpose behind it. The steel industry is not going to make the mistake of attempting to restrict production. Attempts in the past have proven disastrous in many lines of industry, such as textile, oil, coal and agriculture. Some steel men feel that there may be danger of overproduction, but the more enlightened are going in for expansion of their markets, the building of new plants, the installation of new machinery and the fostering of individual worker efficiency, so that if the industry cannot sell its old high-cost output it will and can sell its new low-cost products.

Possibilities of successful consolidation were emphasized recently by announcement of the retirement of the entire funded debt of the United States Steel Corporation, totaling $433,372,000. The United States Steel was one of the first successful mergers, which fact, since it was consummated twenty years ago, has been forgotten by many.

New developments in other lines than steel are aiding materially in keeping the latter industry at or near capacity operation. This is especially true of the pipe mills. The expansion in the transportation and use of natural and artificial gas for heating and industrial purposes has resulted in a huge demand for pipe.

Canton and other sections of Stark county, and all of northeast Ohio, for that matter, is vitally interested at the moment in steel mill operation and expansion. Steel is one of the basic industries of this region, and when the mills are operating at capacity, or close to capacity, there is certain to be felt a reflection in every other line of industry.

While some regions report a slowing up in building trades operations at this time, which is somewhat out of line with the season, there does not appear to be such contingency in Canton. Building operations here are at least normal, if not somewhat better than normal. And with several projects about ready to start, there are reasons to believe that the fall and winter building operations will keep the district above normal in this respect.

Bank debit reports for the first half of the year show a tremendous increase over the corresponding period of 1928. This is a criterion by which business men may safely steer their craft. Where there is so much active money there is bound to be a solid industrial foundation. Stagnated money—money hoarded against the proverbial rainy day—is anything but active, and indicates a fear on the part of the public that working conditions are in the doldrums. But with the money market easy and private money busy, there is nothing to indicate such a feeling.

All in all, Canton and Stark county enter the final half of the current year with the property banner flying and with indications apparent to those whose business it is to watch conditions, that the approaching fall and winter business and industrial trend will develop no slowing up, at least before the usual seasonal slump is evident after the winter holidays.

What Others Say

RISKS FROM LIGHTNING

The tragedy at Montreal, where a golfer and two caddies clustered under an umbrella on the links were struck and killed by a bolt of lightning, repeats an incident of which every summer brings numerous examples. No one can help noticing the high percentage of each year's lightning deaths in which the victims were in some open space like a field, golf links or a beach. The umbrella was not a factor. Merely to be a person standing in such an open space during a storm is dangerous. If everybody learned why this is so and remembered the information the year's toll of lightning tragedies would be far less than it is.

Lightning does not strike erratically like the thunderbolt of a drunken jester. Its path through the air the spot at which it hits the ground, most of the characteristics of the average flash, if not of every flash, are determined by simple rules obeyed by all charges of electricity. One thing that gives the path is the electrical conducting power of the air, which is why lightning is especially likely to strike haystacks or barns with new hay in them. Bacterial changes taking place in the hay produce streams of heated, electrified air rising from the barns. This provides a conducting path along which electricity from the clouds is especially likely to descend. The danger of golf links and similar open spaces is due to another law of electricity, the tendency of the earth's electricity to accumulate on any object which lifts itself even a little above a stretch of even ground.

It is for this same reason that lightning frequently strikes steeples and trees. The earth's electricity, attracted by the opposite electric charge on the clouds, crowds into such elevated objects and electrifies them. That provides attraction for the opposing flash. The same thing is true of a man standing in an open field. He is not so tall as a steeple, but he is taller than anything close by. Lightning resembles fate; it prefers to hit the highest heads. To stand close under a tree in a thunder storm is dangerous because the tree may damage you too. To stand in the middle of an open space is even more dangerous, for you are then in place of the tree. The safest outdoor place to be in a thunder storm is some place away from a tree or tall building, far enough not to be killed if it is hit, close enough to make it effectively higher, so that the strokes will seek it instead of you. If the middle of a field is the only spot available, the safest position is lying flat on the ground.—New York Herald Tribune.

ECZEMA EVIDENCE OF LOWERED RESISTANCE

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
(United States Senator from New York)

Nothing can be much more comforting to its possessor than a clean, clear skin. Everybody wants it and seeks it.

Unfortunately there are many diseases of the skin. Perhaps the most common is the condition called "eczema," or "salt rheum."

Like any other inflammation of the skin, the first symptom of eczema is redness. Not only is the affected part always red, but under excitement, irritation from rubbing or scratching, exposure to heat, or violent exercise, the redness is increased.

After a while little blisters form on the reddened skin. As these break, there is more or less moisture on the affected surface.

But the disease does not stop here. It is not long before scales and crusts take the place of the blisters.

The affected part itches, especially when the redness is increased from any cause. At times the itching is almost unbearable.

It is difficult to tell the difference between simple inflammation of the skin, called "dermatitis," and true eczema. The former is due usually to some outside irritation of the skin, and eczema is due to some internal cause.

Any skin blemish is probably an evidence of lowered resistance. It may be the outward and visible sign of a poorly working stomach and intestines. These red blotches may be the danger signal of Nature.

They may indicate her protest against abuse of the digestive organs. They may mean that the kidneys are failing in their work.

It matters not whether the patient is a grown person or an infant, the presence of eczema should direct attention to the condition of the digestive organs. If constipation is present it should be corrected.

Excesses in food, highly seasoned food, abuse of alcohol, midnight suppers and all indiscretions in diet are productive of eczema, and must not be permitted if cure is to be had. Some one food may act as a poison and be the real cause of the trouble.

The "run-down" person is often troubled with this disease. Overwork, less of sleep, worry, any cause for nervous exhaustion is a sufficient cause for eczema. Tired out persons should be warned by the skin eruption.

The itching may be relieved by application of ordinary baking soda dissolved in water. Oxide of zinc ointment may be had at the drug store and is frequently a means of relief. Sometimes oxide of zinc is mixed with coal tar and used to dry up the blisters of eczema.

One of the most efficacious remedies for itching of the skin is hypophosphite of soda. This may be made up by placing a handful in a pint of water. If the whole body itches place a cupful or more in a bath tub half filled with water and get into the solution. It will add greatly to your comfort.

In every case the family doctor should be consulted. He will determine whether the kidneys or other organs require attention. He will help to find what particular food is responsible for the disturbance.

The maps, of great historical value, date from the period of the discovery and conquest of America, and show the gradual development of the white man's knowledge of the geography of the western hemisphere, very hazy and incorrect during the early years of the conquest. LAKE STEAMER STRIKES CANOE

One Drowned, Two Saved In Accident Near Cleveland

Cleveland, July 22.—Efforts were made early today to recover the body of Frank Kolovich, 22, of Shamokin, Pa., who was drowned late yesterday when the canoe in which he was paddling, with his cousin, Josephine, 22, and Max Toil, 20, both of Cleveland, was capsized in a collision with the lake steamer, City of Buffalo, Kolovich's cousin was rescued.

The canoe, according to J. T. Rhodes of Providence, R. I., a passenger on the City of Buffalo, was sucked under the steamer by the swell although the canoeists made a desperate attempt to break free. Rhodes said the three occupants of the canoe were apparently unaware of the approach of the lake steamer until they were well into its path.

Kolovich disappeared before a life boat could be gotten into the water. His cousin was rescued by an unknown boatman who happened to be near the scene. Their canoe, which was sucked under the churning steamer paddles, was ground into splinters.

Max Toil said they were paddling for the lighthouses off Gordon park when the accident occurred.

"When we saw the steamer, it was almost on top of us and I couldn't steer out of the way in such a short time," Toil said.

Kolovich came here from Shamokin several weeks ago to find employment. He had just found a job, according to his cousin, and was planning to send for his wife and their three-year-old child this week.

STYLE EDICTS

Paris, July 22.—All smart women will be in print (6) again this winter, according to the French fabric-makers who are emphasizing the fact in all their newest edicts.

In addition to the printed velvets which were very popular last season, there are printed chiffons for winter evening frocks, sometimes with another weave such as taffeta or velvet, printed with the same design. A taffeta in one color is brocaded with bouquets of four colors and gold and a transparent velvet in pastel shade is printed in a soft colored anemone pattern. A beautiful chiffon is brocaded with gold flowers, the chiffon reappearing in the center. White designs on navy or black grounds, especially in dots, will be very small. Black and white prints will be very popular.

For afternoon wear both crepe and chiffon prints will be worn, the latter with large designs, big shaded flowers which are seen on both black and light grounds.

A silk crepe resembling marocain has a shaded effect in black and cream re-embroidered in the same tones. And a new woven called dialkasha, has large and small ovals shaded in brown, grey and red.

Moire comes printed in a large flower pattern of four colors and even lace is ornamented with large rose-blended flowers painted in three shaded colorings. One piece has a line cobweb effect made by little irregular black lines printed over it and georgette is brocaded with huge gold leaves on a ground printed with the same pattern in six colors.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By Jeannette Young Norton

Among kitchen experimenters you can find the best, and also the worst cooks. The worst ones are inaccurate; they don't try to understand directions half the time and others are too careless or indifferent about results. Cooking is a distasteful job, but be finished with as rapidly as possible and the chief aim is to get out of the kitchen.

But some first-rate cooks are temporarily unable to follow directions, either. The recipe book specifies vanilla flavoring, and they decide to use lemon juice. "Separate the white and yolks," the directions read, and they wonder what difference it would make to put the whole egg in at once—and try its "Dip chips in egg and bread crumbs," the recipe orders, and the innate impulse to experiment rushes in—and compels them to try spreading with mayonnaise and dipping in flour instead.

Everyone has some moments like this—and some have it all the time. A little of it is, indeed, necessary. Very often one finds a lack of a specified ingredient and it's helpful to have the habit of experimenting. It makes for resourcefulness in cooking crises. But it is also necessary to temper experiment with caution. There are times when an impulsive change may vary improve the dish you're preparing, but it also happens that an apparently small change violates a rule which is sure to make a dish a disaster.

No one rule can cover all cases, of course. Still there are one or two dependable ones that are worth clinging to. It's always safe enough to experiment with flavor changes. For you can make a little preliminary test. Mix a spoonful and taste it and you can decide quickly whether your experiment is likely to be an improvement. Indeed, it's this sort of original work in the kitchen that gives real interest to cooking.

There's always the chance that you may hit upon some new and delightful blend of flavors, and, incidentally, there is a rich new field here for originality. It's a little known art in many kitchens where complicated and beautiful dishes are common enough.

Experiment then, in flavor combinations. Safe enough. But experimenting with directions is an entirely different matter. Most cooking directions have evolved because of the experiment—done by a great many persons—teachers in domestic science schools, scientists in laboratories, culinary specialists and cooking connoisseurs. There's a reason why, for example, when mixing a mayonnaise dressing, you are advised to add vinegar, then the oil, drop by drop, to the yolk of egg and seasoning. It sounds like a waste of time and the careless experimenter dumps the cupful of oil into the egg and acid mixture and beats diligently for a minute or two. Then she's surprised that there's a thick fluid in the bowl, not a creamy mayonnaise.

Heat regulation is another pitfall. The recipe may specify that the roast leg of lamb should be cooked in a moderate oven—after the first ten minutes of searing brown on both sides in extreme heat. But perhaps the cook is in a hurry. She hasn't as much time as she thought. Erro, she'll roast the meat rapidly and she turns it on full tilt. The result is that the little leg of lamb gets nice and brown very quickly in the hot oven—but it's not tender and it's not juicy. Long slow cooking is needed to make the meat tender, and keep the juices within and up to date no other method for doing it has been discovered.

New vegetables and new fruits are a large enough field for anyone who has a real inclination toward kitchen experiment. Herbs, spices and flavorings provide another—most cooks are familiar with only ten or twenty of the hundreds of seasonings. But unless you're fairly sure of success experimenting with authentic cooking directions is risky.

Bad Check Artist To Paint Portraits

Lansing, Mich., July 22.—James Bullock, convicted bad check artist, who has developed into a nationally known portrait painter during his imprisonment at Marquette, is being released only to face another forgery charge at Long Beach, Cal. Arthur D. Wood, parole commissioner, has announced.

Bullock has been in prison at Marquette since 1920 when he was sentenced from Kalamazoo for drawing $30,000 of worthless checks on Chicago banks. He was wanted at the time in California, Illinois and Pennsylvania on similar charges.

During his imprisonment at Marquette, prison officials, discovering a latent artistic ability, encouraged him to study art. His portraits in oils of children have become well known. A portrait of George F. Alter, former attorney general of Pennsylvania, was recently painted by Bullock for the Pennsylvania Bar association.

Oil-electric locomotives have been found to reduce to a considerable extent the wear and tear on railroad rails.

Series Of Upsets Increase Interest In City Baseball Loops

Surprise Showing Of Weak Teams In Both Circuits Big Feature

Colonial Billiards No Longer Considered Best In Hardball League, Due to Strong Comeback Of Masons; Softball Race Close

Activities in Salem's two baseball leagues take on a tinge of renewed interest as the battle for titular honors in both circuits gradually smashes more than the favored one or two aggregations, and is beginning to involve almost every team entered in the struggles.

With everything going along smoothly in each loop, and matters running in a well-organized, coordinative manner, and large crowds migrating to Centennial field to view the various battles, still larger things are expected of the leagues, due to the dramatic occurrences of the past two weeks, when certain teams underwent a re-awakening process, and undetermined favorites with a flash of good ball-playing.

The climax of the whole midseason's activities in the hardball league was reached last week, when the lowly Electric Furnace tilters, occupants of the dark depths of the cellar, flashed some classy baseball, and held the Colonial Billiards, considered the league's strongest, to a 5-5 tie. The week before, the Masons bested the Billiards, which incidentally, up until that time, was the season's biggest surprise, and just last Friday, the lodgemen came back, and startled fandom again with the 10-1 annihilation of the Salem Chimes.

Race Becomes Complex

Long though the margin any league may be, it can always be cut down, and that is just what occurred in the baseball loop, for the Billiards, apparently were enroute to an unexcited title, having won with ease, their first three games. Bill Sanders, the league's crack hurler, mollified them in their first

Bradt Hurls Dun Eden Lake Nine To 14-5 Victory

Lefty Bradt hurled fine ball and Dun Eden had little difficulty in annexing a 14-5 decision over the Alliance Grays at Dun Eden lake, Sunday afternoon.

Bradt held the colored aggregation to six hits, but was given erratic support by his teammates. Price hit a home run and also fielded sensationally. Summary:

WOODS and WATERS by HOMER BOW

Are there any rattlesnakes in Ohio? I have never seen one in this state, although I have tramped a goodly section of it, but reports from various areas, and they are authentic reports, indicate that they are quite a few.

It has been more or less known for some time that there are rattlers in the state, but recent stories I have heard lead me to believe that in certain parts of Ohio they are more numerous than the average resident of these parts is willing to believe. Here is one of the stories:

A battle royal between a large blacksnake and a wild turkey hen at the Roosevelt game preserve near Portsmouth, a few days ago ended in victory for a mother turkey and her brood when the snake was shot by Sanders Brown, vermin trapper at the preserve, although the turkey had the snake badly bested in the scrimmage when Brown arrived.

In making his rounds in search of vermin enemies of the turkeys, Brown discovered the turkey and the snake in combat. The blacksnake, with its head reared a foot above the ground, was striking at the turkey, which was beating it with her wings—attacking with both wings and feet, while her brood scurried to safety in the brush. The snake, being worsted, suddenly sprang and wrapped itself around the turkey's body. The undaunted little hen took the snake for a ride across an open space and finally succeeded in shaking it loose from her body, but it still held on with its mouth fastened in the tuft of feathers on her breast. With beak wing and feet the turkey fought on, dragging the snake about on the ground until she shook it loose.

When the trapper came to the rescue and killed the snake, it still had a bunch of feathers in its mouth, but had been badly beaten and wallowed by the turkey. A few days later he saw another mother turkey chasing a rattlesnake down a hillside. The rattler, buzzing in anger, was endeavoring to escape to the shelter of a rockpile. Brown killed it with his gun. It had seven rattles.

Then, too, reports have it that there is a large crop of swamp rattlers in the swamps of Lake Erie, particularly in the Huron marsh. Copperheads and moccasins are a bit more uncommon but I have seen several of them from time to time. They, too, are exceedingly poisonous and enough so to be classed as deadly unless a wound they inflict is treated immediately.

A friend of mine was after frogs at a nearby lake, several years ago. He was reaching on a pad for a frog and was struck by a snake.

The reptile inflicted two small holes and his arm grew stiff and was sore for several days. He had no medical treatment and was not able to identify the snake.

Snakes never form a topic for conversation unless I think of the hoop snake.

Wild are the tales about this chap, including the one that struck a hoe handle, which swelled up, and the one which struck a tree and caused it to wither and die.

All scientists deny the existence of this reptile and yet the many stories affixed have caused it to become a recognized fact, by some. But did you ever talk to a person who was beyond reproach, who would absolutely state that he saw one?

I have not.

State Fair Exhibit

One of the most interesting attractions at the Ohio state fair this year will be the exhibit of the division of conservation of the department of agriculture.

The new division, which comes into being July 25, will then be a reality. Chief John W. Thompson and Assistant Chief Van Voorhis are now making preparations for exhibits of game birds and animals from the Roosevelt game preserve, the Wellington game farm, and fishes from the hatcheries, both adult and baby fishes of various kinds, including large and small mouth black bass, catfish, bluegills, bream, sunfish, bullheads, sturgeon and other varieties.

Fair visitors will have the opportunity to study Ohio's game birds and animals as well as fish life at close range, and to note the extensive work of the division in the program of replacement and restoration of game and wild life as well as fish life in Ohio.

Strike-out artists of the National League, resulted in Brooklyn's first victory of the year over Chicago, 3 to 1. Vance pitched 10 batters, fanning the mighty Hack Wilson on each of the slugger's four appearances at the plate.

What made the rear of the crowd more annoying was the fact that Wilson had hit safely in his last 27 games.

Manager Rabbit Maranville's dream of landing a first-division berth for the Braves, took on a rosier hue as the beaters two-timed the Cardinals, 4 to 2 and 4 to 3, for their third consecutive victory under the leadership of the veteran spark plug.

Indians Plaster Yanks

Cleveland won the series from the Yanks, three games to two, by knocking out Hoyt and plastering a 6 to 4 defeat on the champions.

Manager Huggins and Buster Gehrig were banished by Upp Van Graflan for squawking over a decision Babe Ruth, the $75,000-a-year pinch hitter, delivered a pinch-single.

Kyle Graham, former Boston pitcher obtained by Detroit from Seattle held the Athletics at bay for 10 innings but went down to a 10-to-7 defeat when the Macks kicked him for four runs in the eleventh. Bing Miller led the Philadelphia attack with five hits.

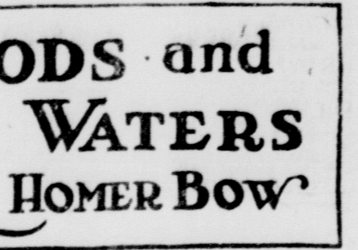

Ted Lyons of the White Sox held the Red Sox to four hits and won in a romp, 10 to 0. Sam Gray's 8-to-5 victory over Washington was the Browns' star's thirteenth triumph of the season. The Reds, with Lucas on the mound, subdued the Phillies, 8 to 5.

Not A Bit Bashful, Melvin Claims, Likes Girls Though

MELVINS, personable young Giants home-run hitter, admits he likes girls and has as many dates as other young men and denies he's bashful. Baseball, though, is both his business and hobby. He's shown above as he stands at the plate, gracefully and formidably waiting to smash his rival's pitched ball over the fence for another home run. Above, right, is a closeup showing his strong hands gripping the bat, and below, another view showing him gripping the bat when he goes through his famous natural swing.

Melvin Ott, 23 years old, Giants' outfield star, is a much misunderstood young man, girl-wise, and registers a legitimate, though mild kick.

It seems Mel has acquired a reputation for being extremely bashful, although continually pursued by adoring females of all ages and the receiver of more mash notes than any man in the big league. Mel says they're all wrong—that he never got a mash note from a girl in his life.

"All the fan mail I get is from kids who want to get into the big league themselves and think I could give them some advice."

As for the suspicion that he flees at the sight of a girl, Ott was mildly aggrieved upon hearing of it. He has dates even as other young men, he said, and enjoys going to dances. Why anyone should imagine that he is afraid of women is just another mystery to him.

Baseball, he explained, is both his business and his hobby.

"I've never wanted to do anything else," he said, "and I don't think I ever shall. I'm just going to keep on playing as long as I'm able, and I haven't thought beyond that, nor made any plans. I don't know of any business I'd like to get into."

When Ott left high school in Gretna, La., Harry Williams, a wealthy lumberman of New Orleans, who had organized as a personal hobby several semi-professional baseball teams, procured his services, and when the boy was only sixteen arranged that his friend, John J. McGraw, should see him, in the fall of 1925. Ott came to New York and the next spring, at seventeen, he was working with the Giants.

This new home-run artist is a personable young man, with a quiet and unassuming manner. Slightly over average height and well built, he has very brown hair and brown eyes. And if Melvin Ott hasn't as yet received any mash notes, it's just because he's such a modest boy, but when once they start coming, they'll come thick and fast.

In Playhouses Of Salem

AT THE STATE

A fine program of theater photographs features this week's program at the State theater, where miscellaneous China Night will be held at this evening's performance. All women, wishing to complete their sets of chinaware, collected during the "China Night" season, can take their pick of the ware still available at the playhouse. The earlycomers will be given first choice.

"Eternal Love" with John Barrymore and Camilla Horn in starring roles, is the feature tonight, Tuesday, and Wednesday, while Edward Everett Horton, who recently made his debut in this city in an all-talking comedy, comes again in a talking farce, "Ask Dad," one of Broadway's most noted stage vehicles.

The story of "Eternal Love" is laid in Switzerland, high in the Alps, among the towering peaks where the characters constantly battle the forces of nature and their own primitive passions. Barrymore, the village ne'er-do-well, loves a spiritual type girl who becomes the wife of another man.

The mountain code forces him into a loveless marriage with a girl who in America would be classified as a gold-digger. His heart still belongs to his first sweetheart, whose jealous mate plots against the life of the man he believes is breaking up his home.

Screen story traditions are shattered in the daring story to an unexpected ending after the mountaineer has left his own wife, slain the husband of his sweetheart in a duel and escaped with her into the wilderness.

The beautiful yet tragic tale is relieved by many touches of comedy and gaiety, especially in the carnival scene, one of the highlights of "Eternal Love."

AT THE ROYAL

"My Lady's Past" is a love story that really begins with a broken engagement. Mamie Reynolds, has been the victim of one of those long engagements. She has waited for ten years for Sam Young to succeed as a fiction writer. You meet her at the end of the ten years when success is about to crown Sam and orange blossoms are in order.

Mamie has been a habit during the interim, so that, when Sam gets enough coin in his pocket to feel like a man of the world, it is the brainless little typist who types his manuscript who excites his fancy more than Mamie—and the engagement is off.

For Mamie this is undoubted tragedy. For Sam, it's being young and impetuous all over again. At this moment, a young man picks Mamie's doorstep as a place to die for love's bitter sweet sake. It is thought he died because Mamie did not love him, and the gossip, who had been pitying Mamie, who despised pity, envy her for being such a heart breaker.

Mamie becomes the most popular woman in town, sought by young and old. And Sam is on the outside wondering why he ever was such a sap. But when his lost love is about to step up to the altar with the town's wealthiest citizen, Sam stops wondering and acts—he elopes with Mamie, which is quite as it should be.
